2. Based on our love for God, we are equipped to love others. How do the gifts that Paul mentions in Romans 12:3-8 demonstrate love?
3. What comes to mind when you think of your gifts? “Gifts” might sound odd, what other words might be synonymous with gifts?
4. We grow relationally when we are responding to the needs of others and holding each other accountable. Why are the gifts essential in the process of growth and accountability?
5. How does “sober judgment” in Romans 12:3 inform our use of gifts and holding each other accountable?
6. Read Galatians 6:1-2. In the interview with Justin Hartley, who plays Kevin, he states no one was willing to respond to his need. What do these verses challenge us to? How do we practically do this?

7. Read Romans 4:17. What hope do we have that something new can come about in our relationships?

8. How do you find hope when relationships are going poorly? Why is this difficult? And what helps make it easier?

9. Truth is an essential ingredient in “How Us Grows”. How do these two elements—something new and something true—work together?

10. Who in your life needs to be encouraged or challenged by these two messages: something new and something true? How can you begin this conversation?
